3. PPKM students at UNIMUDA Sorong make social-environmental contributions. The trip starts on 27-30 December 2021, where exchange students and several UNIMUDA lecturers together visit Fafanlap Village, South Misool, Raja Ampat Islands, West Papua. The main purpose of visiting Fafanlap Village is to carry out social contribution activities. The social contribution made is divided into three activities, namely literacy, stunting and the last is about being aware of the environment from waste. In addition to doing social contribution activities, there are also visiting several tourist attractions that do have extraordinary beauty, which not everyone can be lucky enough to come to South Misool, Raja Ampat Islands. Social contribution activities in Fafanlap village received a very good response and also support from the village. Many people, especially children, participated in making this activity a success. The trip to Fafanlap Village, Misool, Raja Ampat Islands has many memories and stories, starting from the residents of Fafanlap village who are very friendly with new people, the beauty and uniqueness of the village which not all places have it and also of course the natural beauty is very extraordinary, beautiful, see you at independent student exchange in the next batch, PMM Inbound UNIMUDA Sorong: "Exchange While Means Forever! 8. A Holistic Program for Development and Empowerment of Eco-Creative-Based Villages in Agriculture and Home Industries in Klasmek Village. Agribusiness Lecturer Siti Hadija Samual, M.Sc. and several students in the village empowerment development program (P3D) conducted socialization and counseling on the use of cow dung as organic fertilizer on Monday (06/09/2021) in Klasmek village, Sorong Regency. This activity was also attended by the village head and the community around klasmek who work as farmers and ranchers in the village. Klasmek Village, where the majority of the people are farmers, is the potential of the village to develop and utilize manure for organic fertilizer. This organic fertilizer is produced by the decomposition of organic materials by microorganisms so that it can be used as an alternative resource that is environmentally friendly. The use of organic fertilizers is cheaper than using chemical fertilizers which are prone to danger.
